Stories We are Told, Stories We Tell: Explorations in Ethnographic Methods

February 26, 2019
7-9 p.m., Strasser Legacy Room (220 Eggers)

In recognition of the careers of Susan S. Wadley and Ann Grodzins Gold, the Departments of Anthropology and Religion will host a panel of renowned scholar-storytellers who work on religion, gender, and history in and beyond India. This moderated conversation highlights the ways stories are woven throughout their work. Part of the 2018-19 Syracuse Symposium exploring the theme of “Stories,” this event features Kirin Narayan (Australian National University), Joyce Flueckiger (Emory University), Corrine Dempsey (Nazareth College), and moderator Priti Ramamurthy (University of Washington).

Sponsored by: Departments of Anthropology and Religion, the South Asia Center, the Syracuse University Humanities Center’s Syracuse Symposium, and the Ray Smith Symposium

Computer Assisted Real Time Transcription (CART) Services will be provided. For more information or for additional accommodations, please contact Emera Bridger Wilson (elbridge@syr.edu; 315.443.2553).
