

1st Annual CNY Humanities Corridor Undergraduate Conference in Critical Theory

May 7, 2019 at 1:00 - 5:30pm
304 Tolley Humanities Building

Undergraduate students from Cornell University and Syracuse University present original research. Students enrolled in Syracuse University Professor Gregg Lambert's PHI 422: Critique of European Humanism and Cornell University Professor Paul Fleming's COMPL 4995 Critical Thinking and Literary Methods will come together on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 7, to share their original research. Undergraduate students will present papers and graduate students from each campus will serve as respondents and discussion leaders.

1-3pm Cornell Undergraduate Student Presentations

Sarah Lorgan-Khanyile: Comparative Literature, "Singing in a Disremembered Voice: Derrida and the Experience of Lyric"

Elizabeth Schmucker: German Studies and Mathematics, "Moretti's Theory of Literary Evolution Applied to Heimatliteratur"

Jeffrey Sondike: Comparative Literature, "Narration and Description in a Voice from the Periphery: Georg Lukacs and Heather Love"

Syracuse University Graduate Student Respondents

Michael Camele, Communication and Rhetorical Studies VPA MA

Nicolas Croce, Social Sciences PhD

William "Chip" Osborne, Philosophy PhD

Break 3-3:30pm

3:30-5:30pm Syracuse University Undergraduate Student Presentations

Alyssa Jacobson, Philosophy, "Chat-ce que c'est? Derrida as Grammatical Animal"

Joseph Lino, Political Science/Philosophy, "Thought and Writing in Letter on Humanism"

Leo Duke, Political Science, "The Atoms Caught Fire"—Albert Camus and the Crisis of European Humanism"

Cornell University Graduate Student Respondents

Soren Larsen, German Studies PhD

Juan-Jacques Aupiais, German Studies PhD

Sophia Leonard, German Studies PhD

All students and faculty are welcome to attend any part of the program. Light refreshments will be served throughout the day. Email aagermai@syr.edu for more information.

Humanities Corridor
Central New York