AIMS & SCOPE:

Symposium is a quarterly journal of criticism in modern literatures originating in languages other than English. Founded in 1946, the journal is housed in the Department of Languages, Literatures, and Linguistics at Syracuse University. Scholars of literature will find research on authors, themes, periods, genres, works, and theory, often through comparative or interdisciplinary studies. The journal publishes unsolicited essays as well as periodic special issues. Most issues include reviews of recent critical monographs in modern literatures. Although primarily in English, issues can include discussions of works in the original language.

INVITATION TO SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Symposium welcomes original submissions that match the aims and scope of the journal on the understanding that the article has not previously been published, and is not concurrently submitted for publication elsewhere.
